The AV & Tech that will give you the best Doug Hall event

Here are Doug's AV & Tech requirements and if followed will guarantee things with his presentation will be seamless and all parties involved have an amazing experience:

1. Doug uses a MacBook Pro laptop and runs his presentations with Apple's Keynote software. He will only use his own computer and he will have all adapters needed to connect to your system. He will not run it from any other computer, but his own and he will not allow someone else to run it for him.

2. Doug will need sound out as there are often video clips that he will play to emphasize a point(s) during his presentation. The AC power should be adequately close.

3. Doug requires a wireless lavaliere microphone. As an active and animated speaker he will not stand at a podium and a wireless hand held microphone will limit the energy of his presentation.

4. Doug will control his laptop and slides with a remote that he will have with him (he always has a back up remote just in case). The laptop will need to be within his site and works best on a cocktail table set up on the stage that can also, be used as a confidence monitor.

5. Doug will not surrender his laptop or slides in advance of your event. Each of his presentations is custom for that day's audience – he is known to literally make changes backstage and from the stage after speaking to audience members in advance of the start of the talk.

6. Doug is more then happy to do an AV/Tech check and preferably the day of the event to insure that it is all still working when he takes the stage.

7.Doug's slides are not available for download or for publishing as a handout. If worked out in advance Doug will often share his slides after the event with those in attendance.
